

Guns and Barbies:

the Complexity of Play in Early Childhood

The experiences of early childhood last a lifetime. In this unique course, we explore the phenomenon of play, its complexity, its significance and the issues it raises.

Join us ... exploring play from different disciplinary perspectives. The course instructor, Ulrich Mueller, PhD, is from the Centre for Early Childhood Research and Policy and the Department of Psychology. He is the editor of the prestigious Handbook of Child Psychology.

Each week have the benefit of guest speakers from a variety of academic departments and the community. Analyze, discuss and critically consider contemporary issues and controversies around play from multiple perspectives.

Wednesdays

Sept – Nov, 2012

5:30 to 8:20 pm

Register as a credit (1.5 units: course code SOSC390, EDCI 487, or CYC460) or non-credit participant. For information contact us, 250-853-3147, reach@uvic.ca

Offered by the Centre for Early Childhood Research & Policy in collaboration with the Faculties of Social Science, Education and Human and Social Development and the Division of Continuing Studies